ASPECT OF THE CHINESE AFFAIR NOW ALARMING

Safety of Foreigners Is Grave
Question, Reports Admiral
Williams, U. S. N.

EVACUATION HASTENED

Attack on Japanese Sailors At Hankow Indicates Other
Plans

WASHINGTON, Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—The Chinese situation, as it affects safety of foreigners, assumed an alarming aspect today on the basis of additional reports from Admiral C. Williams, commanding the Asiatic Squadron.

Evacuation of Chang-sha, in Western Hunan province, is being hastened because of labor and anti-foreign agitation. Admiral Williams reported, and the American consulate there will close Thursday, ten days earlier than previously planned.

The attack on Japanese sailors at Hankow, resulting in the killing of three of them, shows indications of having been "deliberately planned and pre-arranged," Williams reported.

His dispatch follows:
"During the riot in the Japanese concession at Hankow on April 3, the following damages reported:

"Three Japanese killed, and several maimed; one business house burned. The Japanese vice-consul was wounded. The Japanese were attacked by mobs wherever found in the streets throughout the city and all coolies of every description in the city of Hankow quit work, and joined in the attack on the Japanese. Resident Japanese believe the attack was deliberately organized and pre-arranged.

"The evacuation of Chang-sha by Americans is being hastened, due to labor agitation. The American consul expects to leave April 7. The American river gunboat Palos will leave for Hankow when the consulate is closed.

"The American destroyer Bulmer at Amoy reports strike agitation affecting seamen, members of the post-office and customs staffs."

WASHINGTON, Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—The American government has won its fight for the adoption of a "firm but moderate" policy by the powers meeting in the Nanking conference.

Identical notes are being drafted in Peking today by the American, British and Japanese ministers, strongly protesting the Nanking killings, warning against any repetition, and containing a demand for indemnity. These notes, exhibiting a solidarity of purpose among the principal powers affected, will be handed to the Cantonese either late today or tomorrow.

Edgely

Miss Anna Amole, of Edgely avenue, and friend, of Philadelphia, attended the performance of "My Maryland," at the Lyric Theatre in Philadelphia on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, of Elkton avenue, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home on Saturday evening.

Sons of Temperance Install New Officers

The Bristol Division of the Sons of Temperance, held their installation of officers and celebrated the eightieth birthday of George J. Shepherd, the founder of the Division, on Friday evening, in Mohican Hall.

Deputy Grand Worthy Patriarch James J. Scott, of Philadelphia, installed the following officers:

Worthy patriarch, James Guy; worthy associate patriarch, Mrs. Harry Hughes; chaplain, May Smoyer; recording scribe, George J. Shepherd; associate recording scribe, Mrs. Rilla Hunter; treasurer, W. A. Mohr; financial scribe, Harry R. Hughes; conductor, Nellie King; associate conductor, Mrs. Sue Mohr; inside sentinel, Jessie Lewis; outside sentinel, Emma Kessler; pianist, Nellie King; trustees, George J. Shepherd, May Smoyer, James Guy.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the members adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, of Bath street, where a bountiful repast was served in honor of Mr. Shepherd's eightieth birthday, which occurred on Monday, March 28.

A large cake bearing eighty lighted candles occupied the center of the table. Mr. Shepherd was called upon to extinguish the candles.

The guest of honor gave a brief history of the division.

Those taking part in the enjoyable event were: George J. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. John Mulholland, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Hughes, Miss May Smoyer, Miss Nellie King, Miss Emma Kessler, Mrs. Mary Warden, Mr. and Mrs. James Guy, of Bristol, and Mr. James J. Scott and daughter, of Philadelphia.

Smallpox Develops In Yardley Family

YARDLEY, Apr. 5.—This community is very much alarmed over the outbreak of the first case of smallpox reported in the county in years, but health authorities are doing their utmost to prevent its spread.

The case is in a colored family which moved here some time ago from Alabama. With the exception of two children all other members of the family have had it. The children have been ordered vaccinated immediately.

The sufferer is a young woman, 21 years of age.

Health authorities this morning called attention to the fact that persons who have not been vaccinated for years should see that they are immunized as a precautionary measure.

TWENTY-NINE DRIVERS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

Twenty-Six More Names Have Been Added To The Black List

OTHER STATE NEWS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—Twenty-nine drivers' licenses have been revoked and 26 more names placed on the blacklist, the department of highways today announced.

There were ten revocations for intoxication, six for larceny and five for transporting liquor. Twenty-two of the 26 blacklists were caused by intoxication.

John S. Moore, Chester, was included among those whose licenses were revoked for intoxication and Theodore Marmaza, Waynesboro, for transporting liquor.

Blacklistings for intoxication included J. M. Thomas, Warren; John E. Belter and Edward Semarian, both of Norristown; William Baker R. D. New Castle and Frank Klamititz, Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—Lawyers, coal company officials and forty heirs of the late Samuel Callender are looking forward with much interest to the developments that will follow the expiration on October 1, 1928, of a lease made ninety years ago by Callender in which he granted permission for the mining of anthracite coal beneath a 400-acre farm for the payment of $1 annually.

The coal land is located in Peckville borough, near here, and at present mining operations of the land are being carried on by the Temple Coal Company.

Millions of dollars' worth of coal has been removed from the tract and hundreds of coal operators have become wealthy under the terms of the lease. Heirs of Callender, mindful of the uselessness of attempting to break the agreement, have done nothing but wait patiently for the term of the lease to expire.

Thomas Meredith drew up the "sharp" bargain with Callender. However, Meredith did not benefit personally from the contract since actual removal of anthracite coal from the land did not commence until forty years after the lease had been signed. Title to the lease has changed hands fourteen times since Meredith got possession of the valuable piece of paper.

Present plans of the Callender heirs are veiled in secrecy and newspapermen have been unable to learn what they intend to do when the lease expires next year. Several of the heirs have engaged attorneys.

While a great volume of coal has been taken from the land since operations on the tract began more than a half century ago much coal still remains there and mining men declare that despite the speed which operators may show at the workings between now and October of next year, there will remain enough wealth in the unmined anthracite product over which to stage a legal battle.

Five Tracks Sold By Sheriff Gwinner

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5.—Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner sold five properties at his office in the Court House Saturday as follows:

Two tracts of land in Bristol township, seized from Henry J. Levins and Ella M. Levins, his wife, and Francis Stroup, were sold to the Allegheny Title and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, for $100. The improvements included five frame bungalows.

One tract of land in Haycock township, seized from Joseph Toth, mortgagor and Frank Zacharda and Mary Emma Zacharda, was sold to Federal Land Bank, of Baltimore, for $50. There is a two and one-half story stone house, chicken house and other outbuildings on the tract.

A tract in Bedminster township, containing a two and one-half story frame house, frame barn, wagon house and other outbuildings, seized from Teodosio Colavito and others, was sold to the Federal Land Bank, of Baltimore.

Two lots in East Rockhill township, seized from Milton Lust, were sold to John A. Goodwin, of Florida, for $557. There are three frame bungalows on the lots.

A tract in Falls township containing fifteen acres, seized from William Henry, was sold to Edgar J. Snipes and Jane Moon Snipes, for $2055.

FROM MEDICINE TO POLITICS

Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, who entered politics after years in the medical profession, is shown beside the White House portrait of Thomas Ewing, first head of the Interior Department.

Dr. Work, As Secretary of Interior, Diagnoses Country's Growing Pains

By International News Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 5.—Dr. Hubert Work made a hobby of politics after a life time spent in practicing medicine. Or, as one of the capital wags put it: "After becoming an authority on interiors, he wanted a title and so became Secretary of the Interior."

As Secretary of the Interior he diagnoses the country's growing pains, its reclamation ills, its park fevers, of cetera, just as he used to diagnose the mumps and the measles. And at the same time he attends to the welfare of the poor Indians, who are having no end of trouble making both ends meet on oil royalties of $10,000 a year per head.

Does Sitting Bull want a new Rolls? He must see Dr. Work. Does Mary Rain-in-the-Face want a soiree in honor of a new 10,000-barrel gusher? She must see Secretary Work. He is the Great White Father so far as they are concerned.

In between times, Dr. Work finds time to play quite a fair hand of politics. He began political career inconspicuously back in 1912, the year of the great wind. In that year he was elected a member of the Republican National Committee from his native Colorado. He had been a delegate to the national convention which nominated Taft four years earlier. For eight years after 1912 he worked in the party harness, and then with the election of Warren G. Harding he came to Washington in quest of an appointment. He caught on as an Assistant to Will Hays in the Post-office Department.

When Hays resigned, President Harding named Dr. Work to succeed him, partly in recognition of his services, and partly to avoid a patronage quarrel. When Albert B. Fall resigned as Secretary of the Interior Dr. Work was agreeable to a transfer to that post in order to make a place for Harry S. New, who wanted to be Postmaster General.

Dr. Work's flare for politics had a striking manifestation a few weeks ago when he gave a remarkable dinner in honor of President Coolidge in Washington. To this dinner he invited the "Big Business" heads of the country—John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford, E. H. Gary, Charles M. Schwab, Andrew W. Mellon, Simon Guggenheim, George Eastman, and many others. It was estimated that the combined wealth invited to the dinner was something around $5,000,000,000.

Capital political gossip, seeing something political in almost everything, hooked it up with the talk of President Coolidge's running for another term.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS HOME BY FRIEND

John Buzby Succumbs While
Sitting in Chair at Croydon
Residence

WAS 69 YEARS OLD

A resident of Croydon was found dead at his home on Rose avenue, last night when a friend went to visit him.

Last evening Mr. Blaetz, who for several years had been friendly with John C. W. Buzby, went to pay him a visit. Upon entering the Buzby home Mr. Blaetz was startled to find his friend sitting in a chair and failing to answer his greetings. Upon investigation it was discovered that Buzby was dead.

The deceased was 69 years of age and had resided alone on Rose avenue for many years. He worked about the vicinity as a carpenter.

Upon making his gruesome discovery Mr. Blaetz summoned Otto Grupp, Jr., and Deputy Coroner W. Farnum Young was called.

The body was forwarded to Philadelphia today.

Death was due to natural causes, it is said.

S. Jennings Brown Dies At the Age of 68 Years

Following an illness of eight months' duration, S. Jennings Brown died at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Martindell, Main street, Hulmeville, this morning.

Mr. Brown, who was born in Bucks County, spent a number of years of his life in Hulmeville. A portion of his latter life was passed in Florida, and less than a year ago he went to Hulmeville, residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martindell.

The deceased was 68 years of age; and death was due to Bright's disease. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. E. W. Martindell, Hulmeville; Mrs. James Paul, Langhorne; Mrs. Nettie B. Martindell, Philadelphia.

Relatives and friends are invited to the funeral services on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the residence of E. W. Martindell. Burial will be made in Beechwood cemetery.

DR. ZIEGLER TO ADDRESS TEACHERS OF COUNTY

Meeting to Be Held at County Seat High School On Saturday

EXPECT BIG GATHERING

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5.—Announcement of the final plans for the Bucks County meet to be held at George School in May will be made at the meeting of the Bucks County Teachers' Association to be held in the Doylestown High School on Saturday morning and afternoon, April 9th.

Dr. Carmon Ross, the chairman, announced this morning that at the last meeting in January 175 teachers of the county were in attendance and he expressed a hope that the remaining 250 teachers would attend the next meeting.

The morning session will convene at 10 o'clock and following the announcement of the final plans for the county meet, Miss Helen Purcell, director of elementary education of the Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, will address the teachers on "The Value of Silent Reading." The last address of the morning session will be given by Dr. Samuel H. Ziegler, professor of education, Cedar Crest College, Allentown, who will speak on "A Study of the Reason Why High School Pupils Fail."

Miss Purcell will occupy the first period of the afternoon session at 1:15. She will speak on the subject, "Self Diagnosis." Following Miss Purcell's address, Dr. Ziegler will speak on "Exploratory Function of the Junior High School." Teachers will be given an opportunity to take part in a general discussion following Dr. Ziegler's address. An election of officers will take place for the coming school year at this meeting.

Dr. Ross has announced that lunch would be served in the school cafeteria during the noon hour.

LATE NEWS

LONDON, Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—Identical notes of protest against the Nanking incident have been dispatched to the British, American and Japanese ministers at Peking, it was learned today. These notes will probably be handed to the Cantonese leaders today.

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—Arraigned before Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr., in Quarter Sessions Court today, Magistrate George E. Rowland and his son George F. Rowland, pleaded not guilty to joint charges of conspiracy to extort.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—With a bullet wound through the head, the body of a young man, believed to be Charles D. McAfee, of Ashley, Pa., was found in a lonely field in Hanover Township, near here, early today, by miners on their way to work.

LEGION MEN WILL TAKE JOURNEY TO NAVY YARD

Auxiliary Will Accompany
Boys To Entertain The Convalescent Soldiers

PLAN FOR BIG PROGRAM

On the evening of Wednesday, April 27th, a few dozen members of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the same will journey via bus to the Philadelphia Navy Yard, there to entertain for the evening convalescent soldiers and sailors in the Navy Yard Hospital.

The local Legionnaires and ladies have been busily engaged in the completion of plans, and it has been decided that 13 post members shall present a minstrel performance. The Legion orchestra will likewise accompany the group and dispense music for the enjoyment of those who were injured while fighting for their country. Jokes which will be told by the "colored" troupe, will be made more interesting to the auditors because of their application to those in the audience.

The part to be played by the auxiliary members is the gathering together of cakes, candy and cigarettes, the same to be distributed among the men in the hospital.

The entertainment will be given in the auditorium room of the institution, where there will be gathered together as many of the convalescent men as can possibly be about.

On one other occasion several of the women of the local post auxiliary paid a visit to the navy yard hospital. On that afternoon in March they were accompanied by a few members from the auxiliary of Jesse W. Soby Post, No. 148, of Langhorne. The women furnished an afternoon of pleasure for the men there by dancing, playing cards, and music. This is the first trip made by the two organizations from Bristol together, for the purpose of brightening the lives of the ill men.

Transportation will be furnished by the local men, buses being secured to take those desiring to go, to Philadelphia and return.

Those affiliated with the auxiliary who are desirous of making the trip are asked to notify either Miss Emily Bracken or Mrs. John Brehm; and the post members are asked to give their names to Commander John Rafferty, or George Croner.

BETHLEHEM SHEPHERDS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Pleasing Social Affair Held In Lodge Rooms
Here

ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Shepherds Delight Lodge, No. 1, Shepherds of Bethlehem, held their thirtieth anniversary in the F. P. A. Hall, Radcliffe street, last evening. The visitors were Supreme Outside Guard, Lady Grenell, of Philadelphia; Supreme Scribe, Sir Charles Carr, of Camden, N. J.; and Deputy, Lady Bircks, and her husband and daughter, Gwendolyn, of Philadelphia.

The business meeting was dispensed with, and a rousing good time had socially, competitive games being played, in which the prizes were awarded to Mrs. Arthur Britton, Mrs. Albert Britton, and Mrs. Wesley Bunting.

Following the games a full course chicken dinner was served to the celebrants at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Thompson, of 212 Radcliffe street. Covers were laid for forty-two.

Croydon

Mr. Charles Papst, Mr. H. Kanehl and Mr. Frank Meyers, of Philadelphia, were week-end visitors at the Krieger Club.

Mr. Jasper Lorimer, of River Road, is quite ill at his home, under the care of his physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble, of First and Miller avenues, entertained their parents from Philadelphia on Sunday. All had a delightful time.

Mr. and Mrs. James Quigley, Sr., of River Road, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. McGrath, in Philadelphia. It was the first time the friends had met in twenty-five years.

Bids are open for the St. Thomas Aquinas rectory. It is to be a three-story brick building, about 35x42, located on Bristol Pike, opposite the school building. Work is expected to be started by the middle of the month.

POSTER CONTEST TO START IN SCHOOLS HERE THIS WEEK

Annual Competition To Be Held By Boys' Week
Committee

TO GIVE THREE PRIZES

All Designs Must Contain The Exact Wording
Specified

The annual poster contest held in connection with Boys' Week will be inaugurated in the public and parochial schools of Bristol, this week. Last year this feature of Boys' Week created much interest and developed considerable art of merit.

The plan this year is to offer three prizes the same as last year:

First, $10.
Second, $7.50.
Third, $5.00.

Every boy in the public and parochial schools from the sixth grade up will be eligible to compete. The winning design will be used for the tag which will be given to each boy and will be featured in other advertising matter used to give publicity to the activities of the week.

All designs must be submitted on or before noon of April 23rd. The wording to be on each poster must be as follows: "Bristol Boys' Week, May 1st to 7th."

Last year the contestants gave little heed to the words placed upon the poster, but this year it is the intention of the committee to reject all designs which do not contain the exact words specified by the committee. So the boys are urged to remember, that the words, "Bristol Boys' Week, May 1st to 7th," must be placed on the poster in their entirety. Any deviation from this ruling, no matter how artistic the design may be, will cause the committee to reject it.

Pennsylvania Railroad Has Most Prosperous Year

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 5 (I.N.S.)—The past year proved to be the most prosperous in the history of the Pennsylvania Railroad, an analysis of the railroad's 89th annual report today revealed.

The company's dividend rates jumped from 6 to 7 per cent, the report shows, while $390,000,000 was paid out in wages to 217,000 employees. Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the railroad, saw in the report a general index to national prosperity, he said.

"From a physical and financial standpoint the railroads are at present in a more favorable condition than they have been in the past ten years," he said.

Federal valuation of the road is $2,563,685,568, as against a total capital in outstanding public stock issues of $1,380,405,252.

AMERICA LAGS IN THE AIR

That it is Germany's fixed intention to rehabilitate herself as a dominant power by an intense concentration upon civil aviation has been the repeated statement since the war of observers who have returned from visits to German air-domes, factories and laboratories.

Such reports have until recently lacked conviction. They have been opinions, not statements of facts. Now, however, in the light of recent news—authentic beyond a doubt—such individual reports stand confirmed in a manner which is beyond disbelief.

Already Germany is operating forty airplane lines between her larger cities. And between some of these airports one may travel by plane at a lower fare and in a much shorter time than by rail. Not content with this system the country, through its government and private enterprise, plans more lines and larger, more luxurious planes.

German leaders in aviation are convinced the economic world development of tomorrow will be in the air, and that a great wave of economic activity which is now approaching will be concentrated in the hands of those countries best prepared for aerial development. That the nation has the courage of her convictions is best illustrated by her generosity in the way of aviation subsidies.

Up to this time the United States has not discovered any real economic need for commercial aviation. Because of its speed, aviation is filling a long-felt need in the mail service of the nation and there are a few commercial passenger and freight lines sufficiently in demand to be operated at a profit. But the real question before the American people is if it will suffer a generation hence by failing now to keep pace with other nations in the development of commercial flying.

YOUTH AND ADVERTISING

Fifty years ago boys and girls were adept at weaving rugs, knotting quilts, carding wool, spinning homespun and stretching carpets. Today boys and girls know the entire a-b-c of the automobile, the electric household utensils, the steam heat system, the aeroplane and the radio. But the youth of today knows little of what constituted the store of knowledge of the youth of yesterday.

The omniscience of youth in every era is ever amazing, but that of today would be inexplicable but for one thing more than all others. That is advertising. In the newspapers, magazines and poster boards children are finding a vast storehouse of practical and useful information and instruction. The value of this incidentally acquired knowledge can not be measured in classroom hours. The youth of America is finding that advertising pays it.

Psychologists have expounded the theory that truths are sometimes observed first by the adolescent. In the case of advertising it may truthfully be said that there are some of mature age who have not yet learned the value of advertising. Advertisers do not buy newspaper, magazine and billboard space for the edification of the public, either juvenile or adult, but they recognize the children of today are not only a potent factor in the business of today but the deciding factors in the business of tomorrow.

It is now feared that bobbing may cause baldness. It is certain to make the hair shorter, at any rate.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkbride has moved from one of Wilmer S. Black's houses to Newtown.

James Bell, of Philadelphia, was in town on Saturday.

About $70 was cleared at the recent musical given under the auspices of the M. E. Church choir.

Mr. Johnson has moved into the George Walton property on Pine street.

Mrs. Samuel Longshore and daughter, Marian, have returned from visiting relatives in Westfield, N. J.

Miss Sara A. Fite, an instructor in Penn Charter School, is spending some time at her home north of Langhorne.

John Wall has gone to a Philadelphia hospital to be operated on for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thornton, of Brookline, Mass.; Miss Alice Thornton and Mrs. Robert Barrie, Jr., of Haverford, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Townsend.

Mrs. Maria Graves, who spent the winter with relatives, has returned to her home here.

Mrs. Samuel Harrison, of Akron, Ohio, has come east to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Wildman. Mrs. Wildman, who has been quite ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Goshing, at Ocean City, was recently removed to a Philadelphia hospital and is still quite ill.

Miss Colby, of East Maple avenue, left this week to spend some time in California.

Mrs. O. O. Arnold, of Scranton, Pa., who has been visiting in Langhorne, has returned home.

Mr. Oswald Stanborn, of Atlantic City, was a week-end guest of friends here.

The Friends' School is closed until April 11th on account of an outbreak of scarlet fever.

Robert Ettinger and Ferdinand Keller, Jr., of Philadelphia, were Sunday guests of Pierson M. Candy.

Wilmer S. Black is making a number of changes to his properties, also installing a 4-gun machine in the painting department for lacquer and duco work. Mr. Black has engaged C. M. Snyder, an experienced Philadelphia mechanic, to superintend this department. The trimming depart-

SYNOPSIS

John Ballard, left poor by the same fate that deprives him of his parents, works his way through college, meets and loves Viola Ruskin, and devotes his law career to fighting negligent railroads because of the tragedy he cherishes against them for killing his parents. Phil Hardin, old college chum, offers him a staggering salary to join the legal staff of the railroad. John wavers; it would be his chance to speak his heart to Viola. Phil proposes to Viola. She, loving John, makes Phil wait; but through misunderstanding, John and Viola each thinks the other doesn't care.

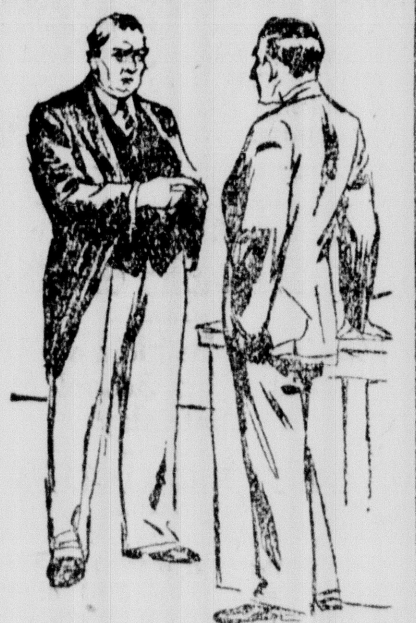

CHAPTER VI

Ten years is a long time. Much can—and usually does—happen in ten years. The whole course of many lives can be changed. The history of a city, a state, a nation, can be shaped for all future time in ten years.

In the ten years that followed the day on which John Ballard heard of Viola Ruskin's engagement to Phil Hardin much, much of significance and importance, had come about.

First of all, in John's memories, was Viola's marriage. He hadn't seen her again; he had contrived to be away on business, at the time of her wedding. And, though Phil had asked him, more than once, to come to see them, he hadn't, for a long time, felt able to do so; hadn't been willing to trust himself to see the woman he loved as another man's wife.

John Ballard had gone on, doing his work, quietly, unobtrusively, efficiently. His practice had grown, slowly, but with a sure, safe growth. He had come to have a reputation as a dogged, hard fighting lawyer; a lawyer who, once he took a case, never let go; a man never beaten until the final appellate court had ruled against him. Poor folks came to know that they could trust him to guard their interests; that he could be swayed by no influence, no hope of great reward.

"I'm anxious to be your friend. Don't turn me into your enemy."

Thanks to the interest of George Warren and the Ventnor Sun, his newspaper, which was the dominating journal of the state, John's name began to be well known. His more important cases were fully reported; he came in, from time to time, for friendly comment on the editorial page. More important and richer clients came to him. He was still careful in his choice of his clients; he would take no corporation business of a certain type, though much of it was offered to him, and Phil Hardin's offer to him was frequently renewed, and, indeed, greatly increased. He met Jordan, a year or so after his return with Phil, and that great man asked him, frankly, why he would not come to the N. Y. and C. V.

"I liked your looks while you were in college. I told you to come to see me. You never did. Why not?"

"I didn't want anything from you, Mr. Jordan," said John.

"Most people do," said Jordan. "It would have been a relief to see a young man who didn't. But I sent for you. I caused an offer to be made to you. You refused it. It's been renewed. I'm prepared to renew it now—and to let you name your own figure. I want you—and when I want a man I always get him."

"You won't get me, Mr. Jordan. I—well, I'm not for sale."

"Be careful," he said. "Don't anxious to be your friend. Don't turn me into your enemy. I'm a good friend—but a very bad enemy."

"There's no reason for you to be my enemy—I'm not yours," said John, quietly.

"Any man we want who is not for us is against us—sooner or later," said Jordan.

"I can't speak for the future," said John. "Is there any reason that you know why I should be against you, Mr. Jordan?"

Jordan stared at him, his eyes drawn together in a frown.

"There are many reasons why, for your own sake, you should take good care not to be," he said, grimly. "I am telling you this as a friend."

John was vaguely troubled by that talk. He had no reason, he knew, to be afraid of Jordan. Yet the man's power, his ruthlessness, his conviction of his own strength, were daunting things to contemplate. John told George Warren of his talk with the financier, and Warren nodded.

"He's a dangerous man," he said. "He does me the honor to dislike and fear me. He's made a good deal of trouble for us. More than once we've found shipments of paper that we needed curiously delayed in reaching us. So much so that we've stopped having paper brought by freight at all—it all comes to us in motor trucks from New York now. It's an added expense, but we feel safer."

"Then we've had two or three concerted attacks by advertisers. Fortunately we're in a sound position financially. And we have always taken the position that the advertiser needs the Sun much more than the Sun needs the advertiser. We need the revenue from our advertising—but we can, for a time, quite a long time, get along without any revenue Jordan's friends can deprive us of. So, though we're by no means friendly, we aren't, just now, openly at war. You must be careful, Ballard."

"You must live in such a way that you are absolutely immune from attack. These people will watch you. The chances are that they have already had detectives on your track. Anything in your private life that might tend to discredit you would be used against you should you enter politics. As, of course, you will I take it that I am right in taking it for granted that there is nothing they could dig up."

"Nothing," said John. "I am willing to have everything I have ever done published to the world tomorrow."

"I thought so," said Warren. "Keep on living just so, and you will have nothing to fear."

Rather to his surprise, John found his business and his income growing steadily in the years that followed Phil Hardin's marriage. He was obliged to increase his office space and employ two young lawyers to help him. He found himself able to move into a comfortable apartment, to dress well, to enjoy what seemed to him the luxury of owning and driving a small car. And he did this without any compromise with his desire always to serve, regardless of profit, the clients who needed him most—the poor people without means to pay the high fees most lawyers demanded.

Meanwhile, while John was prospering in his quiet way, Phil Hardin also was doing well. James Hardin died a few years after his son's marriage, and Phil succeeded him as president of the N. Y. and C. V. But, though it was not generally known, Phil was little more than a figurehead. Jordan was, even more than he had been in the elder Hardin's lifetime, the real power in the road.

His control, owing to stockholdings, was absolute. By clever manipulation, he had so contrived matters that a comparatively small actual holding of voting stock enabled him to sway all elections of officers and directors. More and more the shares were deprived of the voting power, so that those who actually supplied the money that financed the operations of the road had no voice in its management.

Complex in the extreme, there was still a discernible pattern in the manipulations Jordan made. For him the N. Y. and C. V. was a means, not an end—a means to the piling up of fresh millions on those he already owned. He had no wish to make the road a great and prosperous one, it served him in quite another way.

The time had been, and not so long ago, in the days when James Hardin, as a young man, had built it up, when the N. Y. and C. V. had given promise of being one of the greatest factors in the transportation system of the northeast. It had served—as it still did serve—a rich and prosperous section, dotted with thriving manufacturing cities and surrounded by rich agricultural districts.

In those days there had been much local pride in the railway and its stockholders had been numerous in the territory it served.

The cities and towns through which it ran had regarded it as in a sense, their own railway; they had always resented the idea that Wall Street should have any measure of control over the property.

Jordan's entrance into the situation had been gradual; it had been managed quietly, secretly, through mysterious arrangements made by the financier and James Hardin.

HOUSES—

that can be made into HOMES

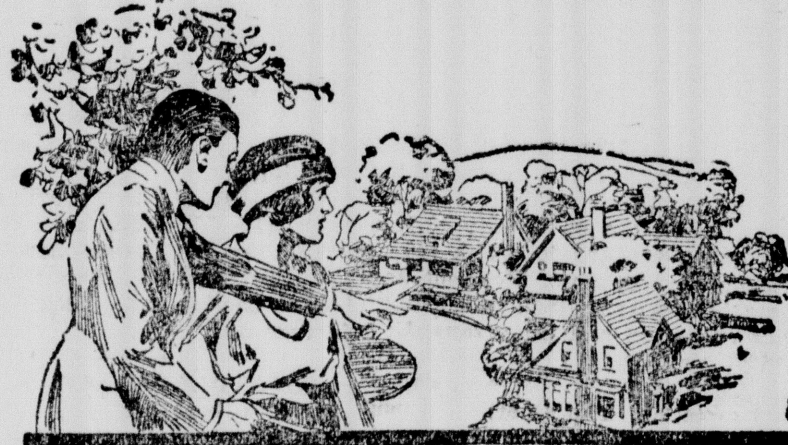

Two-story brick residences containing six rooms and bath. All newly papered and painted throughout. Conveniences which are to be found in any modern house today—electricity, gas, hot air heater, water. Front porches of ample size and large bay-windows on second floor. A rear yard just big enough to be kept neat and attractive. With the touch of a housewife these dwellings can be made into real homes of comfort. Rents are very moderate. Location is good.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1926

THE 80TH ANNUAL REPORT of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, covering operations for the year 1926, will be formally presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting on April 12, 1927. The report shows that in 1926 the company performed the largest volume of public service, and realized the largest gross and net earnings in its history.

The net income for the year amounting to $67,567,958, was equivalent to 13.53% upon the capital stock outstanding.

OPERATING RESULTS

	1926	Increase Over 1925
TOTAL OPERATING REVENUES amounted to.....	$709,817,449	$37,680,487
TOTAL OPERATING EXPENSES amounted to.....	550,360,578	23,221,231
LEAVING NET REVENUE of.....	$159,456,871	$14,459,256
TAXES amounting to.....	37,110,193	5,409,404
EQUIPMENT, JOINT FACILITY RENTS, etc., amounted to.....	15,913,921	2,725,102
LEAVING NET RAILWAY OPERATING INCOME of.....	$106,432,757	$6,324,750
INCOME FROM INVESTMENTS AND OTHER SOURCES amounted to.....	39,890,036	2,608,546
MAKING GROSS INCOME of.....	$146,322,793	8,933,296
RENTAL PAID LEASED LINES, INTEREST ON FUNDED DEBT AND OTHER CHARGES amounted to.....	78,754,835	3,585,662
LEAVING NET INCOME (Equal to 13.53% on Capital Stock) of.....	$67,567,958	5,347,634

Improved results as well as favorable business and financial conditions justified an increase in the dividend rate from 6% to 7% beginning November 1926, making the total for the year 6½%. After providing for this payment to stockholders and for sinking and other reserve funds and for all other charges, SURPLUS for the year amounted to $30,270,966.

The successful achievement of the past year reflecting as it did the great prosperity of the country was also made possible by increasingly friendly and effective cooperation between employees and management in rendering the service to the public, and by constructive cooperation with the Company on the part of the general public and Governmental authorities.

HORNSBY CONFRONTED
WITH SALARY OF $30,000

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—Rogers Hornsby is being confronted by the New York Giants with a salary of $30,000 a year, not the $40,000 that the fourth estate conceded him with magnificent abandon, it was learned today from a National League man who intimated that this fact would be used against Hornsby if he staggered into court under the weight of his financial cares. It has been Hornsby's contention these many weeks that he didn't ask to be traded to the Giants and that, therefore, the National League is responsible for the fact that he happens to be a New York player and a St. Louis stockholder at one and the same time.

The League, my informant intimates, will counter with the claim that Hornsby must have wanted to come to the Giants or else he would not have accepted a $30,000 contract here while refusing $50,000 in St. Louis. The reason this man assigns as making the transfer desirable from Hornsby's standpoint is the oft-repeated story, to wit, that Hornsby and the Cardinals had reached a parting of the ways by mutual consent.

"Hornsby was perfectly satisfied to go to the Giants and he proved it by signing for $20,000 less than Breadon offered him," my informant declared. "He knew when he signed the Giant contract that he had to get rid of his St. Louis stock before he could play in New York. Any man knows that; therefore, why did he set his price at $105 a share, a figure at which no one cares to do business with him. At least, no one seems to be interested at that price."

"It seems very simple to me. The stock has to go. The bidders won't meet the price set; then the price must meet the bidders."

But, in my humble opinion, it isn't as simple as that. The writer might over-value his neck, say at $3.89, and naturally the bidders would be dubious. But if they didn't care to meet my price, they couldn't have my neck, and no law in baseball or civil court could force me to sell my property under pain of depriving me of a livelihood. My valuation might be self-inflated, as possibly Hornsby's is, but that would be strictly my own, my native business.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, expects to issue an official call today for a special League meeting to consider an "out" from the embarrassing situation. Probably some kind of a compromise will be offered Hornsby, although it won't follow the suggestion, receiving some circulation recently, to the effect that the League itself will buy Hornsby's stock at the price quoted. In fact, no one can call the turn in advance, except on this point:

A new rule will be incorporated in the by-laws, either at this meeting or the annual conclave in December, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called "PERKIO-MEN VALLEY BUS COMPANY," the character and object of which is the transportation of persons as a common carrier by means of motor vehicles and similar conveyances, on schedule, between such points and places and by such route or routes in the Counties of Montgomery, Bucks, Lehigh and Berks, or any of them, as shall be approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as evidenced by its certificate of public convenience; and also for the transportation of groups or parties of persons as a common carrier by means of motor vehicles or similar conveyances between such points and places in the aforesaid counties as points of origin and other points and places in the State of Pennsylvania as shall be approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as evidenced by its certificate of public convenience; and for these purposes to have, possess and enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of the said Act of Assembly and its supplements.

BILLY'S UNCLE

signing for $20,000 less than Breadon offered him," my informant declared. "He knew when he signed the Giant contract that he had to get rid of his St. Louis stock before he could play in New York. Any man knows that; therefore, why did he set his price at $105 a share, a figure at which no one cares to do business with him. At least, no one seems to be interested at that price."

"It seems very simple to me. The stock has to go. The bidders won't meet the price set; then the price must meet the bidders."

But, in my humble opinion, it isn't as simple as that. The writer might over-value his neck, say at $3.89, and naturally the bidders would be dubious. But if they didn't care to meet my price, they couldn't have my neck, and no law in baseball or civil court could force me to sell my property under pain of depriving me of a livelihood. My valuation might be self-inflated, as possibly Hornsby's is, but that would be strictly my own, my native business.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, expects to issue an official call today for a special League meeting to consider an "out" from the embarrassing situation. Probably some kind of a compromise will be offered Hornsby, although it won't follow the suggestion, receiving some circulation recently, to the effect that the League itself will buy Hornsby's stock at the price quoted. In fact, no one can call the turn in advance, except on this point:

A new rule will be incorporated in the by-laws, either at this meeting or the annual conclave in December, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called "PERKIO-MEN VALLEY BUS COMPANY," the character and object of which is the transportation of persons as a common carrier by means of motor vehicles and similar conveyances, on schedule, between such points and places and by such route or routes in the Counties of Montgomery, Bucks, Lehigh and Berks, or any of them, as shall be approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as evidenced by its certificate of public convenience; and also for the transportation of groups or parties of persons as a common carrier by means of motor vehicles or similar conveyances between such points and places in the aforesaid counties as points of origin and other points and places in the State of Pennsylvania as shall be approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as evidenced by its certificate of public convenience; and for these purposes to have, possess and enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of the said Act of Assembly and its supplements.

Would You Like to Own an Apartment House in Philadelphia?

Do you realize that you can buy a modern apartment house with an investment of a few thousand dollars only?

You can buy an absolutely up-to-date building for a comparatively small amount of cash. Occupy one of the apartments yourself and rent the others. You will thus provide your family with a comfortable home and pleasant surroundings in a quiet and refined neighborhood while the rents pay you a good income.

This may be the very opportunity you have been looking for. Do not miss it. Apply at once to Robert J. Skilton, 519 Land Title Bldg., Philadelphia. Tel. Rittenhouse 7569.

Your
tongue says:
"Thank you!"

GOOD old Prince Albert in the bowl of your pipe . . . a cooling current of smoke pouring over your tongue . . . the wonderful taste of a wonderful tobacco . . . nothing to compare with this anywhere, Men, I tell you. You can smoke a pipe and enjoy it—with P. A. for packing.

I was pipe-shy for years, before I discovered Prince Albert. I wanted to smoke a pipe. Other men seemed to get so much comfort and enjoyment from pipe-smoking. Then one happy day, Prince Albert crossed my trail. It was cool and kind to my tongue and throat. I've stuck!

No matter what your previous experience has been; no matter how satisfied you appear to be with your present set-up, I advise you to try Prince Albert. You know you are in for some glorious smoke-sessions the instant you get a whiff of P. A.'s fragrance.

The first pipe-load confirms the pleasure promised by the aroma. Cool as an open window. Sweet as milk fresh from the dairy. Mild and mellow as a tropic night. Mild, yet with that full, rich tobacco body that satisfies to the limit. I know you are going to like P. A.! Buy a tin today!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and punch removed by the Prince Albert process.
